

Motorschaden

Beitrag von „Stef“ vom 13. August 2004 um 23:14

That's not a very nice thing to experience.

The pics are very well done and interesting to see.

On your question "Wer kann schon sagen das er seine Zylinder schon einmal gesehen hat", well I hope I will never see it like you did. I prefer to see it as it is when the car is delivered under the hood.

I hope they find the reason this happened and that's there will be a solution to prevent it in the future.

I also blow up an engine, but that one hat already 330.000 kms on it. Yours is almost brand new, you would think something has been wrong from the beginning and that this is the result of it.

Hope it's all fixed before our Internationales Touareg Treffen !!!

Greetings,

Stef.