

Überschlag

Beitrag von „salvatore“ vom 19. September 2006 um 13:25

Schluß mit den Vermutungen, anbei die Schilderung (zum Übersetzen bin ich aber zu faul!):

My wife and I along with a good friend of mine and his girlfriend were out looking at a new development neighborhood behind the neighborhood we currently live in. The roads are all cut and flattened, but not paved...they're basically just loose dirt but very driveable. As we were leaving the neighborhood, literally just about 30-40 feet from the paved road, the front driver side wheel rode up on the embankment causing the back end of the car to slide forward and the Touareg overturned. The car, I guess, had just enough momentum to roll once because we landed right side up on the wheels. Honestly, it was a very smooth roll. You'd think that a rollover would be so violent, and many usually are, but this really just felt like a roller coaster ride...but one that only lasted half a second.

I'm still amazed at how it all turned out. This really and truly was a testament to how safe this car is. You guys should be very proud of the car you're driving because it saved my life, the lives of 2 friends that I love and most importantly, my wife. I'd be lost if anything had happened to her. I've already called the insurance and they're on top of it. I'm just waiting on a call back now. I hate that I may not be a part of this forum anymore...but nothing's final yet. Both of the front doors don't close very well yet the pillars seem intact. I can't say if they'll total it or not but the frame may be compromised. Just waiting to see.